Halliwell's Filmgoer's Companion entry:

"British juvenile actress of the sixties."

Excerpt from TV Times Film & Video Guide 1995 review of "THE LION":

"Sentimental, cleverly-acted drama, shot on location in East Africa. A young girl grows up there, and strikes up a friendship with a huge lion. Pamela Franklin, who plays the girl, later starred in such films as "THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE" and "DAVID COPPERFIELD"..."

Excerpt from Films & Filming - September 1962 - review of "THE LION":

"...The direction is distinguished more for the rapport it achieves with the actors - apart from Holden and Capucine - than for any originality in the handling. Children and amateurs are a good test of a director's skill and tolerance with the human element, and with his handling of the African characters (all played, presumably, by non-professionals) and with Pamela Franklin the director is fairly successful (the child gives a performance entirely free of cuteness or precocity [sic]), but fails to give his characters any really meaningful relationship to their background..."
