Leonard Maltin's Movie and Video Guide 1996 review:

"The year is 1936, and Sergei Kotov (played by director Mikhalkov) is an aging hero of the Bolshevik Revolution whose eyes are closed to the present-day tyranny of Josef Stalin. All of this is about to change upon the arrival of his wife's ex-lover, who is employed by Stalin's governmental police. Provocative and moving meditation on the political and social realities of life in Stalinist Russia deservedly earned a Best Foreign Film Academy Award. Sergei's daughter, Nadia, who has a key role in the story, is played by Mikhalkov's real-life daughter, Nadia. *** "
